HWABELLE BOTANICALS

Pressing Lavender and Baby’s Breath

A calm, modern guide to preparing fresh flowers for the Hwabelle press.

Fresh flowers, carefully arranged, beautifully remembered.

LAVENDER EDITION

A simple botanical rhythm

Lavender brings slender texture and a quiet scent memory. Baby’s breath adds small points of light. The method is to separate the sprigs, remove bulky material, and protect the fine flower clusters as the press closes.

01
PICK
Choose dry, healthy flowers.

02
PREPARE
Separate pieces and remove bulk.

03
ARRANGE
Place every flower with space.

04
PRESS
Close the stack evenly.

05
REVEAL
Lift the dry details slowly.

THE BOTANICAL PALETTE

Lavender purple | White baby’s breath | Sage green | Cream paper | Clear acrylic | Brass hardware

Before you begin

A calm setup makes the pressing process easier to control. Gather everything before the flowers touch the paper.

DRY FLOWERS

Work with flowers that are dry to the touch. Surface moisture can mark the paper and slow drying.

CLEAR SPACE

Use a clean, level table with enough room to keep each flower visible and separate.

FULL LAYER SET

Have blotting paper, padding, the clear plates, and all four knobs ready.

GENTLE HANDS

Handle petals, leaves, and fine stems by their edges whenever possible.

A prepared table protects delicate details.

01 PICK

Gather a light bundle

HOW TO

Choose dry lavender stems with intact flower heads and small, airy baby’s breath clusters. Carry them gently so the tiny florets do not scatter.

CRAFT NOTE Harvest lightly and only where gathering is permitted.

02 PREPARE

Separate the sprigs

HOW TO

On a clean surface, divide lavender stems and baby’s breath into pieces that fit the paper. Trim bulky lower stems and keep the clusters loose.

CRAFT NOTE Small, separated sprigs dry more evenly than a thick bundle.

Build an airy layout

HOW TO

Place lavender in gentle lines and add baby’s breath in open spaces. Keep the stems from crossing and leave the flower heads visible.

CRAFT NOTE A little breathing room protects the fine texture of both botanicals.

Close the 12 by 12 press

HOW TO

Lower the cover sheet and top plate. Align all four corners, then tighten the four black knobs gradually so the stack stays level.

CRAFT NOTE Never force one corner tight while the opposite corner is loose.

Lift the fine detail

HOW TO

Open only when the botanicals feel dry and papery. Peel the paper back slowly, then move each lavender sprig or baby’s breath cluster to its final craft.

CRAFT NOTE Use a thin card beneath fragile stems when lifting them.

Finish and protect

Pressed flowers are thin and delicate. Give them a stable home once they leave the press.

LIFT SLOWLY

Open the plates gradually and peel paper away from the flower.

MOUNT FLAT

Use archival paper or a smooth card beneath fragile petals.

STORE GENTLY

Keep finished pieces flat, dry, and away from direct sunlight.

MAKE IT YOURS

Try a card, bookmark, frame, journal page, or seasonal collection.

Press with care. Keep what matters.
